FAMILY FIRST IS A GROWING FORCE IN AUSTRALIAN POLITICS

Family First has MPs in Victoria, South Australia and now Western Australia

Today, MLA Dan Sullivan announced that he has decided to join Family First as the party's first representative in the Western Australian parliament.

"It's great to have Dan Sullivan on board. This move represents another huge step forward in better representation for Australian families where it counts at the parliamentary level," Leader of Family First Senator Steve Fielding said.

"Dan Sullivan, the former deputy leader of the Liberal Party in WA, resigned from the Liberal Party in February. Like many Australians, he is disillusioned with where the major parties are heading."

The WA Family First team also includes small businesswoman and Joondalup City Councillor Trona Young who will lead the party's campaign to field candidates in every Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council seat.

"We're delighted that Dan has joined with Family First to give people living in Western Australia a real choice about how they want to be represented on those core issues that matter – health, crime, small business, families and seniors," Senator Fielding said.

"Family First is looking forward to the day when we have MPs in every State and Territory of Australia, so that families right across Australia will have an even stronger voice in Parliament."
